By United Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—New hope was aroused today in the breasts of Harry L. Diggs and E. Drew Caminetti, convicted of white slavery, by the decision of Federal Judge Pollock of Kansas in a similar case, that the Mann act does not cover the private escapades of men and women, but rather referred to commercial white slavery.

"That's fine," said Diggs in his cell this morning. "Our appeal will surely win."

Caminetti said: "Since the federal judges cannot agree on our appeal, it looks very encouraging for a decision in our favor."

Special Prosecutor Sullivan declared that Judge Pollock's ruling had no bearing on the appeal in the Diggs and Caminetti cases.

"Judge Pollock," he said, "evidently did not read the rulings of the Supreme Court before he wrote his decision. Judge Van Fleet ruled correctly on every point."

HIS WIFE RELENTS*Withdraws Charge Against Husband
She Has Locked Up.

Charging that he stole $3.50 of her own money, which she had carried by taking in washing, Mrs. William Harris of Swanton, Tenn., swore out a warrant before Magistrate Duggan for the arrest of her husband yesterday, but retracted this morning, withdrawing the charge and paid the costs of the case.

Harris was arrested by Chief of Police Rutter and Constable Stillman about 5 o'clock last evening at the corner of Apple and Peach streets. At first he declared his name was Smith but his wife identified him when he was locked up at the police station. The arrest caused much excitement as Harris stated the chief and the constable for some time and quite a crowd of people gathered, the report having spread that a notorious pickpocket was being caught.

The prisoner was locked up all night but his wife appeared this morning and after a talk with him was persuaded to withdraw the charge. In the information was also a charge of non-support, and the woman declared that he will not work half the time and when he does he spends the money for intoxicants.

LETTER BOXES HELD UP*Postoffice Department Has None to Replace Those Taken Down.

In answer to the many inquiries as to why the six mail boxes which were taken down in various parts of the town within the past year because they had become unfit for use, have not been replaced, Postmaster A. B. Kuriz says that he has had a requisition before the department for a long time but has been unable to have it filled because there were no new boxes to be had.

The contract to supply the boxes to the government had expired and the time required to get a new contract made that the number on hand was quickly exhausted. Hence Connelville, and many other places will have to wait until deliveries are made to the government by the successful bidders on the contract.

CROW IS FAVORED*Fayette Man May Be Named Republican

Strong sentiment in favor of electing State Senator William E. Crow of Fayette as chairman of the Republican State Committee exists among the newly chosen delegates who will gather in Harrisburg on Tuesday to reorganize.

The meeting will mark the return of the regular organization leaders to control. W. W. Griest of Lancaster is also suggested as a probable candidate for chairman. It is said, however, that Crow is not a candidate for the office.

WEST PENN LINE TO CALUMET
GATHERS IN THE SHEKELS*Nearly 800 Fares Rung Up First Day
New Line Is in Operation
From Here.

The West Penn is the popular way over in Westmoreland county, as is shown by the first day's business on the new line from Here to Calumet. Cars were run on Saturday and it is said upwards of 800 fares were rung up. Everybody in the neighborhood wanted to go somewhere, if only to the end of the line and back.

The new extension is about three miles in length. The present fare from Here to Calumet is 10 cents. When the line is completed, either 20 or 25 cents will be charged, according to unofficial information. At the West Penn offices it was stated that the fare schedules will not be arranged and announced until the line is in operation.

John Sheehan of Greensburg, was conductor on the first car to Calumet Saturday. He had a busy day of it as the opening of the line was a matter of considerable importance to residents along the right of way.

Merchants of both Latrobe and Mount Pleasant expect to profit by the Here-Calumet line. It will cover a well settled neighborhood, there being many mining families which heretofore have enjoyed limited transportation facilities.

PLAYS SULZER*Prosecutor Bitter in Opening Speech Against Accused Governor.

By United Press.
ALBANY, Sept. 24.—In opening the impeachment case against William Sulzer this morning, Eugene E. Richards spoke at considerable length and with much bitterness against the accused governor who, he said, "declared he was going to campaign collectors when he had various private 'business' scattering the city and state of New York for contributions."

Richards said Sulzer worked the same for all there was in it, being open to contributions of from $10,000 down to $2.

Richards went at length into the charges and made a bitter personal denunciation of Sulzer. "It is the office, high is the position," he said, "and low and mean and the crime which is committed in the name of the city and state of New York for contributions."

dian, Wants Her to Hear It.

By United Press.
WINDSOR, Vt., Sept. 24.—Philippe Girona, a French Canadian, who came from Italy three months ago, bringing the family accordion and a sweet voice, has just developed a great ambition. It is to play his accordion and sing his love songs to the President's family. Already Philippe has played and sung to many of the rich summer residents hereabout, trudging up the hills to his home when his day's work is done, and trudging back again after he has finished his list.

"He wants a song of when you love da one girl," Marion Pizolo, his friend who can talk English, explained. "He like to sing to President's girl what get married soon."

Philippe, who is a French Canadian, has a beautiful voice and a powerful contralto voice "sings da song" of the lover.

SOME WEATHER GUESSES*Nature Wizards are Predicting a Long, Cold Winter.

The probabilities of a severe winter are already receiving discussion in some quarters and the argument is most commonly advanced is that as last winter was abnormally mild, the coming season should be colder than normal, according to the law of averages.

There are also the usual line of prophecies based on various phenomena of nature. For instance, one bucolic weather prophet bases his prediction of a rigorous winter on three signs which he claims are infallible: (1) the hares are at their wits' end, (2) the corn shocks are tight on the ground, and (3) the moss on the north side of trees is loose.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—"With Roosevelt all things are possible" seems to be the general tenor of the answers received from congressmen to requests by the United Press for comments on the statement attributed to Senator Sutherland that the Colonel would be the Republican nominee for President in 1916.

Interest was added to the discussion by the statement of Representative Kelly, a Pennsylvania Progressive leader, that the Colonel when asked point blank whether he would accept the Republican nomination, declared that such an event was most improbable.

MEDICAL INSPECTION*Go to Jeannette to See the

Because of Physical Defects, and May Become Normal Through Attention; Physicians Interested.

For the purpose of seeing medical inspection in the schools carried on in a practical way, several members of the school board went to Jeannette today. In the party were President F. E. Younkkin, Secretary C. W. Jays, Lloyd Shaw, A. W. Bishop and J. R. Davidson. Superintendent S. L. Ashe accompanied them.

It is proposed to inaugurate medical inspection in the Connelville schools about October 1, but the board wanted first-hand information before proceeding with its arrangements. The inspection has operated very successfully in the Westmoreland county borough, it is said, and arrangements were made for the Connelville men to be present while the inspection was being made.

Members of the board believe that a good many backward pupils might be normal students if their physical defects could be pointed out and remedied. Their interest was aroused by the reports of Superintendent Ashe.

"You would be surprised," Mr. Ashe states, "to know the number of children who are suffering from physical defects which might easily be overcome, if taken in time. The most serious trouble we have to contend with is poor eyesight. No boy or girl can do good work if he is suffering from an eye strain. There is scarcely a room in the town that does not have one or more pupils with defective eyesight, yet who are not given the proper medical attention."

Defective teeth, throat and nose troubles are also said to be prevalent, all of them contributing towards making the pupils backward. Medical inspection, it is the conviction of Superintendent Ashe, will overcome many of these difficulties.

The board has decided to enlist the aid of the Connelville physicians to the extent of making medical inspection possible without great expense to the school district. It is said that the physicians have exhibited considerable interest in the matter and have indicated a willingness to co-operate with the school authorities.

X-RAY GOWNS DAZE NEW CHIEF-
SHOULD BE PINCHED, HE SAYS*"No Try It? Not I Like My Job Too Well," Explains Mr. Totten With the Bright Gift Star.

The widespread agitation against the prevailing styles of women's dress has struck Connelville at last, of course not so forcibly as to cause any serious complications but a blow, nevertheless—a slap on the wrist as it were. And as usual the first gentle criticism comes from police circles, Chief Rutherford Rottler having declared: "They ought to be arrested."

Police chiefs, judges high and low, and many others high in authority have delivered themselves of caustic and at times vehement remarks concerning the new fangled costumes, and Chief Rottler may have desired to commute his police brethren's wrath into a slap on the wrist as it were. But it is more likely that he spoke from a sincere desire to elevate the morals of the community by removing the contaminating influences said to be contained in and about the said women's dress. Anyways what he said was: "They ought to be arrested." And you, he did not go so far as to declare that he would arrest such offenders or direct the patrolmen to do so, he merely explained what in his opinion ought to be done. He says he likes his job too well to start anything he can't finish.

Strange to say it was not the famous "slit skirt" that aroused the chief to the point of saying that "they ought to be arrested"—wearers, of course, not the attire—but the diaphanous, clinging thing known as the "X-ray gown," which is said to be quite prevalent here. The reporter says that not because he is not interested in such things and which, in the language of the poet, attracts attention because it "half conceals, half discloses"—things.

HUNTER HEADS BUREAU*Hicklow's Deputy Put in Charge of Announcement was made in Harrisburg last night that Joseph W. Hunter had been designated as Deputy Highway Commissioner at the head of the new bureau of township highways, to carry into effect the law passed by the last Legislature. Between now and the first Monday of October, when the new law becomes fully operative, Mr. Hunter is to work out the details of the law and arrange for the taking over by the state of more than $3,000 miles of township roadways. It is not a difficult task, in that the township supervisors will be required to fill out keeping the state department in intimate touch with the operation of each board of supervisors as to purchase and construction or repair contracts.

In connection with the highway commissioner, Mr. Hunter will immediately begin the preparation of forms provided for in the law, which the township supervisors will be required to fill out keeping the state department in intimate touch with the operation of each board of supervisors as to purchase and construction or repair contracts.

Job at Nominal Sal-

So They are Marking Time; Frick

The Board of Health discussed the retention of Barthold Rottler, recently appointed chief of police, in the health officer, and a number of other matters and at some length at its regular meeting last night, two hours being consumed before it was decided to continue the Rottler for one month at the nominal salary of $10. The decision was "unanimous" though Secretary Flood admitted that all of the members did not vote.

A letter was received from Commissioner of Health Edmund G. Dixon informing the board that under the city charter the present organization goes out of office at the end of the year and new members will have to be appointed by the new council after it takes office in December. Dr. Dixon advises that this be done as promptly as possible in order that there may be no delay in the workings of the department. He also declares in another communication that the organization of the new board will be under the Act of 1899, under which the present board was established.

Letters to and from the H. C. Frick Coke Company relative to the subletting of the city post house, on the Plummer farm, were submitted to the secretary. The Frick company will not consent to the renting of the building by Ridge Brothers, contractors on the state road, who desired to use it for about six weeks as quarters for their employees. The board was in favor of renting the building, but to be on the safe side, wrote to the Frick people for their approval. The contractors seem no difficulties in their way, went ahead and made considerable improvements, only to learn later that they could not use the structure. The reason for the refusal to approve of a subletting of the property is that an undesirable class of tenants might cause annoyance to the tenants of the farm on pay nights or some other festive occasion.

BARRIER A SUCCESS*Pulverized Stone Restrains Coal Dust Explosion in Severe Test.

That a barrier of pulverized stone will effectively restrain a coal dust explosion in a coal mine from spreading, was conclusively proven, according to experts, by the demonstration put on at the Bruceton experimental mine yesterday, before the delegates to the convention of the American Mine Safety Association.

Never before in any of the stone dust tests that have been made has an explosion as vigorous as the one of yesterday been obtained. The success of the barrier in containing the flame to the portion of the entry behind it, in spite of the tremendous explosive force of the burning coal dust, is accepted as positive proof that the new method is the best that has yet been devised to lessen danger from this source.

Immediately after the explosion a rescue crew supplied with breathing helmets, entered the mine. It was found that the flames had not passed the barrier. The fact that although a canary bird that was carried into the entry by the rescue team died almost instantly as a result of the gases caused by the explosion, the breathing helmets saved the men from even any discomfort.

POWDERED COAL TEST*One Railroad Is Spending $50,000 on

The flexibility of fire, with the absolute regulation of coal and air, is also emphasized, and in switches and small locomotives, it is believed that the services of a fireman might be dispensed with.

THE LITTLE SISTER.

A frock for a girl of eight to ten appears in the accompanying drawing. It is a sort of compromise between the Balkan and Russian blouse styles, both of which are so becoming to children of this age. This may be made up in wool material, or if the days of the drowsy feeling are not yet passed, a shiny linen, chambray, or other washable material would be pretty. The blouse has slightly more fullness than the Russian styles and follows a short and rather snug fit. The frock has been made of wool material. The wide collar is of silk, faced with the material. The plaid drape also the drop shoulder seams front closing and cuffs.

ERUPTION LIKE TETTER ON CHEEKS

Small Pimples. Would Scratch Till it Bled. Caused Lots of Pain at Night. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Ten Days

R. F. D. No. 3, New Holland, Pa.—"About a year ago our little daughter, three years old, had a bad case of skin disease in her face. The eruption first broke out on her cheeks in the form of small pimples which itched so badly that she scratched and caused it to spread all over her cheeks and chin. Then it would form scabs which she would scratch off again at night. Her face caused her lots of pain at night, she would scratch till it bled. She cried a good bit about it. It seemed like torture. We got a box of Cuticura Soap and a can of Cuticura Soap and used them morning and night for ten days until she was completely cured. It did not leave any marks." (Signed) F. M. Weaver, May 8, 1913.

Suffered Three Years. Used Resinol. Now Not a Pimple To Be Seen.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27, 1912. "I had been troubled for the past three years with pimples which completely covered my face and neck. The pimples would come out, fester up and cause me to pick at them, feeling very uncomfortable. I tried to get all kinds of facial creams, but with no effect. I tried a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment and noticed instant relief. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and began the treatment. After using two boxes of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, there was not a pimple to be seen, and now my face is as smooth as if there was never a pimple on it." ADVERTISING. THE DAILY COURIER is the only daily newspaper in the Connelville coke region which has the honesty and courage to print a daily report under oath of the exact number of copies it prints for distribution. Other papers furnish no figures. Advertising rates on application.

THE WEEKLY COURIER is the recognized organ of the Connelville coke trade. It is an essential part of an industrial journal and an advertising medium for such interests.

WANT CROW FOR CHAIRMAN. The mention of Senator Crow's name for Chairman of the Republican State Committee is being received with approval by Republican newspapers as well as Republican leaders. Editor "Bob" Herbert of the Greenback Tribune, whose newspaper experience has given him a statewide knowledge of politicians and people, gives Senator Crow the following unqualified endorsement:

Senator William Evans Crow, of Fayette county, who combines modesty with all the other elements of a true, forceful and honest man, is being talked of as the probable Chairman of the Republican Committee of Pennsylvania.

Senator Crow is loyal and his advancement would be logical. He knows how. He is absolutely unselfish. He has always been willing to give abundantly of his intelligent efforts for any honor that has come to him in politics, and he would go into the hard work of that place with clean hands and a determination to give to his party the best that is in him.

Senator Crow is a people's man. The Republican masses as any man in the state, and he would make a most excellent State Chairman.

A ROAD MACHINE. State Highway Commissioner Bligh is in no hurry to take on the Township Superintendents under the new law. If the object of this law is the strengthening of the state machine, as is charged by the opposition, it looks as if the machine is in no hurry to avail itself of the benefit of the law.

It will in due time probably be found that the State Highway Department is preparing to administer the law in its proper spirit by a careful study of the conditions. If the law is a machine move it is certainly not intended to apply to the coming elections, and it was certainly not applied at the recent primary wherein the constituent parts of the machinery of each party were chosen.

The new machine is in fact a road machine rather than a political machine.

PROTECTION. Intelligent and fair minded people in the Connelville coke region are sincere believers in the propriety of not the necessity of protection to American industries including American workmen, and all sensible taxpayers of Connelville deem it to be the duty of the city authorities to furnish them with the best protection against the ravages of burglars, housebreakers, sneak thieves and other marauders of like character whose depredations have become a common nuisance and a serious loss to households.

It is time the city were getting busy. There has thus far been no serious effort to break up the organized gang which seems to be operating in Connelville and whose most nightly visitations are a constant terror to nervous citizens and sometimes quite disquieting to courageous men.

It is one of the basic principles of government that in return for the taxes paid for its support such government should protect the citizen in his person and property.

The government of Connelville has failed in this duty, principally because of the inefficiency and the inefficiency of its night watchmen service. Its police force has been largely a daylight organization and too much confined to the central district. It is true that the finances of the town will not admit of any considerable permanent increase of the force, but perhaps the temporary employment of special men might solve the problem by running the gang to cover and breaking it up.

In justice to the citizens some special effort should be made to rid the town of this undesirable element.

A BAD POLITICAL PLAY. The efforts of our always esteemed but not always well contemporary, The News, to be non-partisan at election time when seeking Republican support for Democratic candidates and zealously partisan when it is necessary to support the Democratic organization, leads it into some queer predicament.

It has been advocating the elimination of partisan politics from the forthcoming city election, but it has been earnest in support of the combination of Republican and Democrats which has recently taken over control of the Town Council. It insists that it is non-partisan in this because out of the 21 members of the Town Council there are but 6 Democrats. The News does not close the two members from the Second Ward as Democrats, but they are not Republicans, either.

The 13 Republicans could as The News points out control the affairs of the borough if they desired, but it seems that they cannot agree among themselves and so a portion of them have sided with the Democratic members. It is true that this is non-partisan, but it is not the kind which is profitable to the people. Such political combines are invariably combined against public policy. If all the Connelville try earnestly to serve the taxpayers first, subordinating their personal and political interests to that duty, there would be no need of combination.

The present combination is no worse than others that have been; but it is no better; and it is a question whether it is quite as good. The Courier only voiced public criticism when it said that the Democratic fall was warring the Connelville was "playing politics" and it is difficult to see how the charge can be successfully denied in the face of the fact that one of the first acts of the combination was to dismiss a Chief of Police because he was a Republican and put in his place a successor because he was a Democrat.

Chief Hietzel was summarily dismissed. There were no charges preferred against him, doubtless because his record was too good. The Courier is in receipt of numerous communications complaining of this change and protesting against it. The citizens are referred to the Town Council for removal of Hietzel.

It is evident, however, that this particular political play was a very bad one. The News itself was prompt to admit it and is now trying to shield the Democratic organization in the Town Council and out, from the consequences of it.

The merchants of Connelville are reported to be strong for the forthcoming Style Show. The stronger the sentiment among the more successful the enterprise is likely to prove; and the more successful it is this year, the more successful it will be next year. In its own success will lie its fresh growth. Frequent direct enterprises always do. In one very essential feature the Style Show will be wisely directed, namely, it will be properly advertised. It is a fact, if we give Senator Crow the following unqualified endorsement:

Senator William Evans Crow, of Fayette county, who combines modesty with all the other elements of a true, forceful and honest man, is being talked of as the probable Chairman of the Republican Committee of Pennsylvania.

Senator Crow is loyal and his advancement would be logical. He knows how. He is absolutely unselfish. ## CHANGES MADE IN MINISTERS IN THE SCOTSDALE AREA

One United Brethren Charge
Out of Three Gets Same Preacher.

NEW PLACE FOR REV. HUMMELL

Conference Evangelist Is Appointed for First Time; Dr. L. L. Rank of Harrisburg Comes to Scottdale;
Other Notes of News of Mill Town.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Sept. 24.—Changes were made in the appointment of ministers by the United Brethren conference in Greensburg for two of the three churches in this locality. Rev. J. J. Rank was retained for another year to the Greensburg and Mount Noto churches. On Sunday he will preach at Mount Noto in the morning at 10.30 and at Owensdale in the evening at 7.30.

The new minister for the Scottdale church is Rev. L. L. Rank, D. D., who has been pastor for several years at Harrisburg, having a very successful work there. Dr. Rank will not be here for two Sundays it is expected, and arrangements have been made to have Rev. J. H. Hummell, for some years the pastor at Esopus, to preach morning and evening next Sunday, and Dr. Lawrence Kolster of Mount Pleasant the Sunday following. Rev. C. W. Hendrickson who has had several years' successful work in Scottdale was transferred to Barton avenue, Johnstown.

Rev. J. H. Hummell who has been pastoring at Esopus, is given an entirely new created field of work, that of conference evangelist. Reverend Hummell has done much successful evangelistic work and has given the field of the smaller churches much study. It being his idea that they should be given more aid from the conference at large. His work hereafter will be in assisting the smaller churches, holding evangelistic meetings and giving such aid as the conference evangelist is usually given in comparison to the one who has a church in the larger town. The place is a newly created one in the conference and it is believed it will act with vitalizing force upon the smaller churches. It will mean self sacrifice on the part of the man who takes it, and will necessitate traveling over the conference, but Reverend Hummell is chosen as a man eminently fitted for the work. He will be under direction of the district superintendent and will make his home at Hellwood, near Altoona.

Chosen to follow Reverend Hummell at the Esopus church is Rev. W. A. Wessinger who was at Madison for the past year. Reverend Wessinger came from the United Brethren church and has the reputation of being an active worker.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE Stephen B. Rutherford committed Mrs. Eliza Guest to Greensburg to jail on a charge of vagrancy of the peace, on Tuesday. Information being made by Helen Rutter.

WILL BE READY.
Scottdale churches will be ready to entertain the Westchester County Sunday School Association should it conclude to come here next year when the convention meets in Johnstown on Thursday and Friday in the First Presbyterian Church. There will be a good number of Scottdale Sunday school workers in attendance at the convention.

"THE GIRL OF MY DREAMS" the best musical comedy of the season, at the Bolson Theatre, matinee and night, Saturday, September 27. Seats here on sale at theatre. Both phones—Adv.

MOORE STEEP OF T.
Several more loads of materials for the drilling of the gas well on the DeLarfer farm west of town were hauled out on Tuesday and are expected that another cub of materials will arrive today. The boiler has been hauled out, and the derrick is being worked on the drilling. The work of building the foundation for the steel derrick is the next work. About 10 days preparation will be required if it is well before work can be started on the drilling. The William Perrett team are hauling the materials and they are on continuing some had roads.

RALLY DAY.
Next Sunday will be rally day at the North Scottdale Mission and all friends of the work are invited to be present, the hour being 2.30 P. M. There will be an address by H. S. McIntyre, a locomotive engineer of Greensburg, and a stirring speaker.

STOP CATARRH!

Unless Properly Treated With Hyonol
This Disease May Become Serious.

If you have catarrh, usually indicated by swelling, itchy, red, watery eyes, and morning chills, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane, which affords an ideal condition for the growth of disease germs.

Do not allow the dangerous germs which may be bred into the nose, throat and lungs to begin the destruction of your health. The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to cure catarrh is by breathing Hyonol—this wonderful medicine is breathed in through the throat and lungs, directly following and surely destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled—the tissues of the throat, nose and lungs are quickly healed and vitalized. The unusual way in which Hyonol is sold by A. A. Clarke dispels all doubts as to its curative properties. Money refunded to anyone whom Hyonol, inhaled, inhaled and title of liquid, costs but $1.00.—Adv.

Dublin Strike Riots Stir Added Feeling Against Head of the Tramway Trust

DUBLIN, Sept. 24.—More are dead and injured from the strike riots in Dublin, a city of terror. All Ireland is in a state of commotion. Starting with a few thousand transport workers, the strike has grown to most serious dimensions. None can tell what will happen next in the way of violence. William J. Murphy, head of the tramway trust, as he is called, is the center of enmity by the strikers, but he said he would hold his stand firmly. It was considered likely that troops would be brought into the city.

There will also be good special music. The St. John's Sunday School has been growing and doing good work since it was started.

NOTES.
Miss Ida Hiltz, a teacher in the St. John's Sunday School, returned to her work on Monday morning, not needing to go earlier as the school children were given a holiday to the Pittsburgh Exposition.

Mrs. Ida Glasgow has returned to her home in Allegheny after visiting Mr. J. H. Luter.

J. H. Luter is home from Lancaster where he was a delegate to the annual convention of the Independent Order of Amherstians.

A. F. Byrne, formerly of Scottdale, and who has sold his hotel in Republic, has moved to 305 Morgantown street, Altoona.

Rev. Lawrence Kolster was a visitor from Mount Pleasant on Tuesday. Wanted—Men to quarry already crimped limestone, 50 cents per perch. Apply C. J. Christner, mile west of Scottdale.—Adv.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE
IS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

They have to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach. Liver and bowels.

If your little one's bowels are clogged, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if he breathes fast, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if he vomits, gives a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!—Adv.

1913 Fall Opening 1913
Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26 and 27.

During the past years of our business life in this town it has been customary at the opening of each season to celebrate the occasion with several days of entertaining our patrons in the big store with music and fancy displays of merchandise—along with presenting each visitor with some small souvenir to remember the opening days.

Today, in this age of progressive merchandising, we have risen above this old custom and have inaugurated an entirely new system. We realize that the public want something more substantial than a big show. They want VALUES, and the merchant who gives honest return for the money you have to spend is the one who will eventually get your patronage.

For these two opening days, Friday and Saturday, September 26 and 27, we will offer throughout this large store VALUES of the highest type for prices that will win you to us as patrons. In every department and on every class of merchandise you will be surprised to see at what reasonable prices they can be purchased.

We invite you, one and all, to attend this opening event, even if you don't want to buy a penny's worth. We know it will be to your advantage to see what the Big Store has to offer.

OUR NEWEST AMERICAN PLAYGROUND

Blackfoot Indians at Mc Dermott Falls, Arrowy Co., MONTANA

This American Switzerland Is One of Nature's Tramps and Its Magnificent Scenery Equals Any That the Alps Can Offer.

How would you like to ride by horseback, stage or automobile over a road bordered by a tall spruce, fir, cedar and hemlock and see the timid, gentle deer peep out at you between the lower branches? How would you like to fish in mountain lakes and stream and in one day catch several ten and twelve-pound trout? How would you like the exhilarating experience of climbing a glacier and picking your way past deep crevasses carefully following a trusty guide while you dig your hob-nailed boots into the ice? How would you like to take a launch ride over a pellucid lake hemmed in by high mountains and land at a little chalet for the time being your very own on a cliff overlooking this deep blue lake? How would you like—? But why repeat the question? Of course, you would like it. What normal person, man, woman or child would not?

All this is being done in the heart of our own America in that newly acquired and magnificent Rocky Mountain playground, the Glacier National Park. Part of all it is a distinctive "See America Reason." It belongs to the people of the United States to you and me and to future generations. People have been going to Europe for many years just to get a glimpse of what we have here at home.

Backbone of American Rockies.

It is a magnificent country this—the Glacier National Park region. It is so new, so unspoiled, so filled with natural wonders, and it holds the very backbone of our American Rockies with their stupendous elevations which range from three thousand to over ten thousand feet. The eastern entrance to this American playground is at Glacier, and Bolton furnishes a gateway at the western end. This makes the park readily accessible to either eastern or western travelers. A frequent and delightful mode of travel is to enter at one gateway and depart at the other making in this way the circuit of many of the park's best known and most interesting attractions.

Coming from the east, one approaches to the very foot of the Rockies, where he finds a new up-to-date hotel modified after the Foresty Building at the Portland fair. Set on a knoll that overlooks surrounding mountains, it is equipped with the conveniences of a city hotel while its architecture gives the keynote to the outdoor life that awaits in the park's interior, for it is built of huge logs.

After, when one is ready to depart for the park's interior, the clothes of fashion are cast aside and the hunting suit, divided shirt, wide and pulled boots and broad-brimmed hat are donned. From here the traveler starts to see the wonders to sleep and eat in unique Swiss chalets built at Two Medicine Lakes, Cut Bank Canyon, St. Mary's Lake, Going-to-the-Sun Mountain, Gunsight Lake, Sperry Glacier, Mary Glacier and Granite Dues. You can take your choice of one or all of these but concerning their scenic beauties there is a creel it is this. If you see one you will want to see them all and when you have seen them all you will wish to go back and see them over again for the lakes, mountains, glaciers and meadows of wild flowers are so beautiful and the chalets so unique.

One can stay one day or many in this magnificent park the number of beautiful lakes that one sees depending on the time. Some persons spend all summer others stay two weeks or ten days, and pass from camp to camp to get an idea of what the park offers. In a region which embraces 1,100 square miles of the main ranges of the Rockies that is a part of the great Continental divide, that is sixty miles from northwest to southeast and forty miles wide from east to west, one can spend a whole summer and feel that many of the attractions have not been seen.

The Blackfoot Indians

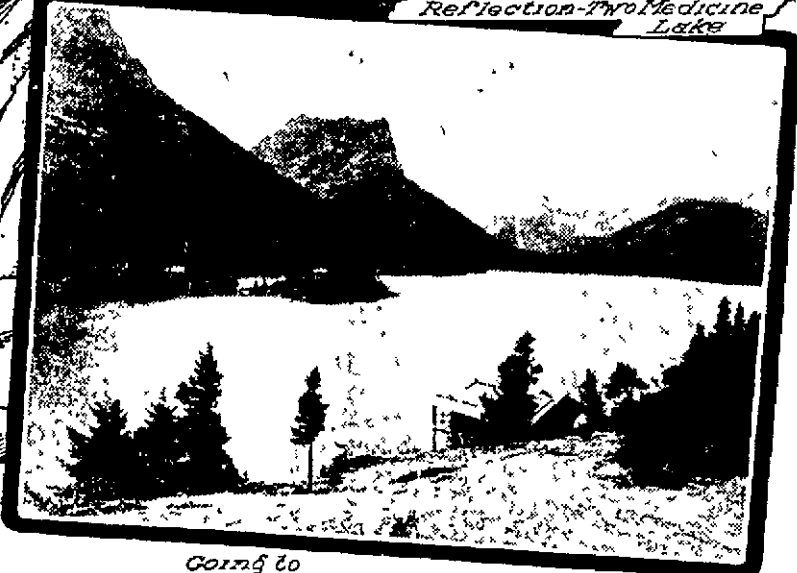

Let us in imagination take a hurried trip through this park stopping at the attractive camps to get some idea of its beauties. At the Glacier Park hotel at the entrance we may have been greeted by the chiefs and principal men of the powerful Blackfoot Indians whose reservation borders the park on the east. Perhaps they have danced for us dressed in rare and expensive embroidered and beaded costumes ancestral garments that no amount of money can buy. The next morning we too, have thrown off the conventional dress and clothed in outdoor gearments, city men drivers, rangers all look alike and the women are untrammelled by long skirts and high heels. If we want a one day outing we will take horseback or stage to the Two Medicine Lakes a leisurely jaunt over meadows and through forest until we reach the beautiful mountain rimmed lakes where legend says that the great medicine men of the Blackfoot used to hold their councils of war. Ever since the valley has been called the Two Medicine Lake country and on the shores of these lakes we can lunch in the pretty chalet dining-room or we can boat on the water, or perhaps decide to remain and spend some time in the little Swiss chalets that are built to accommodate one or several persons. The reflection in the lakes are beautiful and the walks tempt one to linger.

From here we can pass to Cutbank Camp the next camp in the circuit, or can return to the lake hotel and go by horseback or automobile over a magnificent automobile road constructed around the mountains and revealing wonderful views nearby and at a distance. In half a day we are at St. Mary's Camp on St. Mary's

Reflection-Two Medicine Lakes

Going to the Sun Camp

Cut Bank River and Camp

Lake where again we find hospitable chalets some built so near the water that wonderful moonlight effects can be viewed from the windows. At this camp, we find horses, stage, and launch ready for trips in several directions. We have a choice of Going-to-the-Sun Camp, Mary Glacier Camp and going over the pass, which means taking horses and going to Gunsight Camp, Sperry Camp and Lake McDonald. It is a wonderful trip wherein one crosses the continental divide and sees the magnificent Sperry Glacier.

A Beauty Spot.

One camp however must not be missed and this is Going-to-the-Sun. Its charms remain as an indelible picture for its location is conceded to be the most attractive of any in the park. It is reached by a delightful launch ride on the emerald hued lake which is bordered by lofty mountains. One of these, Going-to-the-Sun, or according to the Indians Looking-toward-the-Setting-Sun Mountain, at certain seasons of the year shows near the summit the face of a woman with floating hair. As this is formed of pure white snow the Indians call it the face of the Virgin Mary. The camp itself is an aggregation of pretty log chalets located on a rocky ridge two hundred feet above the lake while the mountain towers behind. Another magnificent view is from the trail or by railroad from Glacier Park Hotel we can reach another beautiful lake—McDonald—near the other park entrance and take side trips or boat or enjoy the beautiful trails by the side of rushing brooks. All of these trips can be taken by horseback or we can diversify the mode of travel and take stage, automobile or launch as desired.

It is a wholesome delightful trip and every camp affords opportunities for side trips. For instance it is great fun to take a launch and spend one day at Avalanche Lake, to visit Iceberg Lake, where the icebergs float in the water, on some other day to climb Sperry glacier, etc. The Department of the Interior has an appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars to spend on this park for the coming fiscal year and this will go for development and care, so that the principal points of interest can be made more and more accessible.

Varied Scenery.

It is a grand divide that twists through this park and the two ranges, the Livingston and Lewis, lift into the air two stupendous types of mountain scenery. There are magnificent glaciers some accessible to the average climber, others waiting for the more intrepid mountaineer. Most of the lakes are mountain rimmed, the rugged peaks and ridges towering above and reflected in the transparent waters. Some waters are amethyst blue others are dark as the sky at night and ice-girdled the year around, many more are ever changing in hue. One learns to greet the brawling mountain streams of pure glacial water to call the mountains by their poetic names to gain some inkling of the Indian legends connected with them. But best of all he loves them. He loves their unspoiled beauty for they allure with the mysteries of the wild and the unadorned. There are parts rich in Indian legend and sections where the voyager and pathfinder blazed the trail, but the flower-strewn meadows, impressive solitudes, charming lakes and tarns, vast snow fields turbulent torrents, magnificent virgin peaks all convey the impression that they are part of a harmonious majestic whole which is for the first time being discovered. Around and everywhere is that ethereal spirit of the mountains the call of the unconquered which elevates and dignifies and imparts a new spirit to all who come within their shadow.

Miniature Yachts and Their Skippers

Youthful Skippers and their Craft

The Pet of the Boat Lake

All Sail Set

Aspirated Race in a Sparkling Breeze

Hundreds of Boys and Girls, and Grown-Ups Too, Assemble Each Fair Day On the Brink of a Pretty Little Lake in Central Park To Sail or Steam Their Little Craft.

Little has been a period in the lives of all of us when we dared many a spanking for the joy of sailing a boat, or even a chip in a bathtub or gutter. Spankings had no terrors for those of us fired with an ambition born of a hazy knowledge of the daring deeds of Vikings, to explore with our rude and homemade craft foreign shores, even though they be but the far side of a bathtub or the last unexplored point of the gutter that flowed past our back gate. These perhaps, were instincts that were hunted down to us from our far travels. Discover one Christopher Columbus and in consequence we are all born skippers with a do or die determination to outbail the other fellow.

There is one little spot however set in a city in glade of rare beauty on whose broad and sparkling bosom there floats more little sail yachts and power boats that represent in the aggregate a fortune, than any other in this country. This is the boat lake in Central Park New York, where nearly a thousand miniature boats are daily sailed and steamed by their owners whether they be children or grown-ups. This may surprise you for be it known that grown-ups are even more ardent and enthusiastic skippers than the average boy who overflows the bathtub with a novel rug in order to prove the seaworthiness of his little craft. Scudding under a bluff which sweeps down from the Fifth Avenue side of the park and overlooked by the stateliest and costliest mansions occupied by the wealthiest residents of New York the little boat lake shores are met by sweeping arcades which reach down to its limpid waters in a gentle slope, affording delightful vantage points for hundreds of rest seekers, or artists, who have chosen this spot as one of the most exquisite sites of landscape in the park. It has been reproduced on thousands of canvases and the glimpse one gets of the gray walls and turrets of the Metropolitan Museum of Art through vistas of verdant boughs adds but a deeper charm to the picture.

Morris Buks Here.

A boardwalk surrounds the lake which covers, perhaps, an area of three acres and this walk is crowded from morn till dark with hundreds of enthusiastic yachtsmen and yachtswomen. On the far eastern shore of the lake, standing back a little from the walk, is a little boat house and this is the tender care of Morris Buks, a genial and courteous old Celt who long since leased the Bukses Stone as well as winning his spurs as a salt of the old school. Morris is a born sailor and he loves with a devotion little short of idolatry the little boats that are stored, through a special permit gained from the City Park Commissioner in the boat house. No fee is exacted by this graft ridden city for this privilege it seems and in consequence barefooted and ragged little boys and girls from East Side are just as welcome to sail their boats here as the children of acres of parents who reckon their wealth by millions.

In all there are upwards of a thousand little yachts sail and power, stored in the boat house. Many of these were fashioned by the hands of their owners. Others were purchased at stores or else from retired seafaring men who spend the long winter evenings in their homes whittling out yachts after the model perhaps of the boat on which they made their most memorable cruise. These tiny little boats that are stored, through at fabulous prices after of course the boat in question has been brought to the park and tried out.

From early spring to the day the lake takes on a skin of ice it is crowded with boats of all sizes and classes. When the first warm sun of spring softens the air and removes the sting of winter from the atmosphere a host of those husky old skippers may be seen slowly making their way to the lake, tenderly bearing their boats. If they are of the opinion that the trial spin of their boat is to be in secret they are vastly mistaken for the children of Fifth Avenue as well as those of the East Side know just in well when it is time to go to the lake as the oldest salt. There is always a big gallery on hand to observe these trial spins—and critical observers they are too. These little fellows know a boat the moment their eyes rest on one and further they are not easily swayed when it comes to making a deal. Of course many of them are children of parents who keep a yacht in commission and they absorb much of their nautical lore from the crew of their fathers' yachts.

There are many men, young and old unable to enjoy the thrills of yachting in the true sense of the word who seize upon the pleasures afforded by the park lake as the next best substitute. Many of these men are employed as clerks and their evenings are spent in fashioning boats from models of some celebrated yacht of international prowess. These yachts are brought to the lake in the early spring and put overboard. If they are right they are stored in the boat house and from then on every possible moment that can be spared from business is devoted to the sailing of these little craft. It is surprising the keen rivalry that springs up between owners of boats and when a real race is on the interest is as keen and intense as though a Lipton cup was hanging in the balance.

To indicate that American Cup De-fenders have proved popular models there are no less than a hundred Reliance in the boat house and each is a supposedly exact replica of the American conqueror of the Lipton challenger. Sunday morning is a popular time for the grown-ups although hundreds of children from the East Side swarm about the lake-side on that day.

Where Rich Meets Poor

But the fellowship that exists between rich and poor is one of the most delightful features of this cosmopolitan sport. Frequently a ragged little urchin from the East Side, who knows more about a boat in a minute than half of the mer who pay a hundred thousand dollars a year to keep a yacht in commission will journey to the lake with a crust of bread his hard-working mother has spared him for his luncheon. He will be joyfully hailed by a faultlessly dressed son of a Vanderbilt or a Gould who attended by maid or valet, is at the lake to sail his yacht or race his miniature motor boat the latter in all probability costing two or three hundred dollars. When the noon hour arrives a footman will be seen approaching bearing a hamper from which is spread on the lawn a spotless and snowy cloth preparatory to serving the all frasco luncheon. The honored guest in all probability is the little urchin whose pocket is bulging with the hard crust he brought from home. He is liked because he knows everything possible to be known about a boat and further, if the Vanderbilt or Gould boat should have a flaw he would not hesitate to tell its owner so. That is why he is so popular.

Many of the races sailed over his little course are widely heralded and when it becomes known that boats of a certain type and the best in the class are to be pitted against each other an enormous outpouring of enthusiasts follows. Men, women and children journey from one end of the island to the other to watch these races and strange to say there is far more interest in the sailing races than there is in those of the power boats, despite the high speed and proportionate cost of the latter. Some of these motorboats are imported and the engines in them alone cost one hundred or two hundred dollars. Some of them travel at a speed of twenty miles an hour and their steering gear can be so adjusted that they can encircle the lake many times without accident.

But it is an interesting spot and a democratic one. And there is none more interesting than old Morris Buks, who can be induced to talk, although this is not often for he is far too busy attending to the affairs of his many patrons, all of whom swell his tiny

DINK AND DINK—Some Lessons in Economy.

By C. A. Voight

CHAPTER XIII.

At seven o'clock that morning the men in the circus camp awoke, worried, fatigued, vaguely resentful, unusually profane.

By eight o'clock a miraculous change had taken place; the camp was alive with scurrying people, galvanized into hopeful activity by my possibly unwarranted optimism and a few judiciously timed threats.

Clothed with temporary authority by Byram, I took the bit between my teeth and ordered the instant erection of the main tent, the construction of the ring, barriers and benches, and the immediate renovating of the portable tank in which poor little Miss Claridge had met her doom.

By the standing-stones of Carnac, I swore that I'd have all Finisterre in the tent. "Governor," said I, "we are going to feature Jacqueline all over Brittany, and if the ladies object, it can't be helped! By-the-way, do they object?"

The ladies did object, otherwise they would not have been human ladies; but the battle was sharp and decisive, for I was desperate.

"It simply amounts to this," I said: "Jacqueline pulls us through or the governor and I land in jail. As for you, Heaven knows what will happen to you! Pardon settlement, probably."

And I called Speed and pointed out Jacqueline, sitting on her satchel, watching the proceedings with amiable curiosity.

"Speed, take that child and rehearse her."

Speed took Jacqueline by the hand, and together they entered the big tent. With tent-stakes, hammer, saw, and screw-driver I worked until noon, mending my plans all the while. These plans would take the last penny in the treasury and leave us in debt several thousand francs. But it was win or go to smash now, and personally I have always preferred a tremendous smash to a slow and easy fizzle.

A big pot of fragrant soup was served to the company at luncheon; and it amused me to see Jacqueline's troop into the tent with the orders and troop down with her bit of bread and her bowl of broth.

"How is she getting on?" I called across to Speed.

"The child is simply astir!" he said. In English. "She is not afraid of anything. She and Miss Crystal have been doing that hair-raising 'flying swing' without rehearsal!"

Byram's buoyancy had returned in a measure. He sat in his shirt sleeves at the head of the table, vigorously sipping his tartine in his soup, and, mouth full, leaned forward, chewing and listening to the conversation around him.

"I'll say one thing," observed Byram, with dignity; "if ever I get out of this darn confining with my cuffs, I'll recapture in the indulgent mudders and joyful sales of the United States. Hereafter that country will continue to remain good enough for me."

Now that I had stirred up this bee, and set it swarming again, I had no inclination to turn down. Yet I remembered my note to the Countess de Vaneart and her reply. No about four o'clock I made the best toilet I could do my only other suit of clothes, and walked out of the bustling camp into the square, where the money fountain splashed under the oak and the children of Paradise were playing.

One thing I noticed as I crossed the usual moat of the Chateau de Tre-court on a permanent bridge. There was a man, lying belly down in the bushes, watching me; and as I walked into the court I tried to remember where I had seen his face before.

There was a soft whirling in the air like the sound of a spinning wheel, and grew louder as a servant admitted me into the house and guided me to a sunny room facing the fruit garden.

Suddenly the melody ceased, and a young Bretonne girl appeared in the doorway, courtesying to me and saying in perfect English: "How do you do, jealous, gently.

So with infinite pains I went back and traced for her the career of Buckhurst, sparing her nothing. She sat motionless, her face like cold marble, as I carefully gathered the threads of the plot and gently twisted that one which galvanized the mask of Mornac.

"Mornac!" she stammered, aghast.

I showed her why Buckhurst desired to come to Paradise; I showed her why Mornac had initiated her into the mysteries of my dossier, taking that infernal precaution, although he had every reason to believe he had me practically in prison, with the keys in his own pocket.

She told me that Buckhurst came to her house here in Paradise early in September; that while in Paris, pondering on what I had said, she had determined to withdraw herself absolutely from all organized socialistic associations during the war; that she believed she could do the greatest good by living a natural and cheerful life, by maintaining the position that birth and fortune had given her, and by using that position and fortune for the benefit of those less fortunate.

This she had told Buckhurst, and the rascal appeared to agree with her so thoroughly that, when Doctor Delmont and Professor Tavernier arrived, they also applauded the choice she made of Buckhurst as distributor of money, food and clothing to the provincial hospitals, now crowded to suffocation with the wreck of battle.

Then a strange thing occurred. Doctor Delmont and Professor Tavernier disappeared without any explanation. They had started for St. Nazaire with a sum of money—twenty thousand francs, locked in the private strong-box of the countess—to be distributed among the soldiers of Chausy; and they had never returned.

In the light of what she had learned from me, she feared that Buckhurst had won them over.

"But," I said, patiently, "you have not yet told me where he is."

"I don't know," she said. "A week ago a dreadful creature came here to see Buckhurst; they went across the moor toward the semaphore and stood for a long while looking at the cruiser which is anchored off Groix. Then Buckhurst came back and prepared for a journey. He said he was going to Tours to confer with the Red Cross. I don't know where he went. He took all the money for the general Red Cross fund."

"When did he say he would return?"

"He said in two weeks."

"That is good news," I said, eagerly.

"But tell me one thing: Do you trust Madame Louise Elven?"

"Yes, indeed—indeed!" she cried, horrified.

"Very well," said I, smiling. "Only for the sake of caution—extra, and once perhaps useless caution—say nothing of this matter to her, nor to any living soul save me."

"I promise," she said, faintly.

"Now that Mornac is not over a pawn in the game—no, indeed, I begin to believe he never really was, but has been from the first a dupe of Buckhurst—it is the duty of every honest man to watch Buckhurst and warn the authorities that he possibly has designs on the crown jewels of France, which that cruiser yonder is all ready to bear away to Saigon."

"How he proposes to attempt such a robbery I can't imagine. I don't want to denounce him to General Chanzy or Aureles de Palladine, because the conspiracy is too widely spread and too dangerous to be defeated by the capture of one man, even though he be the head of it."

"What I want is to entrap the entire band; and that can only be done by watching Buckhurst, not arresting him. Meanwhile, as long as we stay in Paradise we both are your devoted servants, and we both the privilege of serving you."

"You ask the privilege of serving me," she said. "You could serve me best by giving me your friendship."

I was silent.

"I have you never given women your friendship?" she asked.

"In fifteen years—nor asked theirs."

She sprang up and caught both my hands in her ungloved hands. "Won't you take my friendship—and give me yours—a friend?"

"Yes," I said, slowly. As in a dream I bent forward; she abandoned her hands to me; and I touched a woman's hands with my lips for the first time in fifteen years.

"In all devotion and loyalty—and gratitude," I said.

"And in friendship—say it!"

"In friendship."

"Now you may go—if you desire to. When will you come again?"

"When may I?"

jealous, gently.

So with infinite pains I went back and traced for her the career of Buckhurst, sparing her nothing. She sat motionless, her face like cold marble, as I carefully gathered the threads of the plot and gently twisted that one which galvanized the mask of Mornac.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Path of the Lizard.

About nine o'clock the next morning an incident occurred which might have terminated my career in one way, and did, ultimately, end it in another.

I had been exercising my lions and putting them through their paces, and had noticed no unusual insubordination among them, when suddenly, Timour Molek, a big Algerian lion, flew at me without the slightest provocation or warning.

Fortunately I had a training-chair in my hand, on which Timour had just been sitting, and I had time to thrust it into his face. "Down, Timour Molek! Down down down!" I said, steadily, accompanying each word with a blow of the whip across the nose.

The brute had only hurt himself when he struck the chair, and now, under the blows raining on his sensitive nose, he doubtless remembered similar episodes in his early training, and shrank back, nearly deafening me with his roar. I followed, punishing him, and he fled towards the low iron grating which separated the training cage from the night quarters.

Golfers the country over are thrilled to enthusiasm by the remarkable performance of young Francis Ouimet in winning the national golf championship, hope he will win success if he competes in the British amateur and open championship tournaments next year. The Massachusetts amateur proved himself the golfing sensation of the year when he defeated Ray and Vardon, the English professionals, at Brookline, Mass. That he was the hero of the hour is shown by this picture. His club members perched him in triumph on their shoulders, and heartily every American golfer did the same.

THE BRIQUET TRADE.

Welsh Plants Export Entire Annual Output of 500,000 Tons.

The entire product of about 1,500,000 tons per annum of the 11 briquet-making plants of the Welsh coal fields is exported. One-third goes from Cardiff and the remainder from other South Wales ports. The Mediterranean countries are the chief customers, although France, Spain, and Portugal take in her navy and a certain quantity for domestic use.

The heaviest briquet weighs 2 1/2 pounds and is 10 x 8 x 1/2 inches. The smallest weighs 6 1/2 pounds and is 8 x 5 x 1/2 inches. The combining material is pitch. Prices vary with those of coal, and in ordinary years may be taken at $4 to $5 per ton.

American Pacific Coast ports from Mexico south take annually from 150,000 to 200,000 tons from South Wales, and the Atlantic ports are purchased in average years of more than 20,000 tons. Some 75,000 tons are annually shipped to the United States, the remainder being taken for export.

The United States principal customers are the United States, Mexico, and the United States. The United States principal customers are the United States, Mexico, and the United States.

PHILIPPINE COAL.

Consumption Gains, an Indication of Increasing Expansion.

For the last five years the coal consumption of the Philippine Islands has increased at the rate of about eight per cent annually, indicating industrial expansion and the development of steam and electric railroads and other public utilities. Last year 125,637 tons were imported, aside from 82,000 received at the naval coaling station at Manila.

Practically all of the coal used ashore comes from China, Japan and Australia, and the bulk is taken by the railroads and the electric companies, although some tobacco manufacturers, tobacco, most about 10,000 tons a year. The principal consumers have recently formed an association for the cooperative buying of coal, indicated thereby by the higher prices which have prevailed during the past year.

NEW VIEW ON MANN ACT.

Kansas Man Freed from White Slavery Charge.

WHITELIA, Kan., Sept. 23.—Long Baker, a laborer, was acquitted of a white slavery charge in the federal court here today, after Judge John C. Pollock had instructed the jury that it must be shown that Baker took the slave to Texas for commercial purposes before they could convict him of violating the Mann law.

It was not the aim of Congress to prevent the personal escapades of any man, said Judge Pollock.

How to Cure Cholera Morbus.

Many cases of this disease result fatally before medical aid can be obtained or a physician summoned. It is easily cured when the proper remedy is at hand. Mrs. Charles Stevens of Mt. Collins, N. Y., writes: "When my husband had cholera morbus last summer he used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and it cured him promptly. Every family should keep this remedy at hand. It only costs a quarter of a dollar in all dealers."

RED SHANTUNG.

The gown above which is fashioned from duck red shantung is a new autumn model becoming and attractive. A new curved girdle is shown in this which promises popularity later. This is lined with a narrow, richly colored embroidery corresponding to the yoke. The vest front is filled with narrow ruffles of lace. The blouson touch to the elbow, where they join long under-sleeves of soft-toned chiffon. The skirt of this gown is a popular type for fall, closing to the left with lapped slash showing discreet glimpses of the under and slightly pleated into the girdle at back and front.

NO DATE SET

Early Hearing of Ore Rate Protest Is Not Likely.

No date has been set by the Interstate Commerce Commission for hearings on the complaints of the Wheeling Steel & Iron Company, and the Pittsburgh Steel Company against the new rate of 58 cents on iron ore from Lake Erie ports. While the points raised in both complaints are similar, it is thought each case will be heard separately.

The great importance attached to the cases is urged as one reason why they should be given the attention of the commission at an early date. It is not believed, however, that a hearing on either case will be started before the middle or latter part of October. The commission is preoccupied with business and its calendar has been kept well filled.

The new protests against the 58-cent rate to Pittsburgh and Wheeling are not thought to have caused delay in the Mahoning and Shenandoah valley case.

There's true value in every pair of shoes for men—we know what's in them!

Fully Thirty Styles for Women

ALL IN COMPLETE READINESS IN EVERY SIZE AND WIDTH. HERE YOU WILL FIND REAL SHOE VALUE.

The new fashion lines are very sensible, and so designed as to give a more slender foot appearance. Women's Wright-Metzler Shoes show these new lines, and also the solid, substantiality which makes for good wear. A pretty model is pictured—the same style coming in button or lace.

Black and tan calf, oozo leather, suede, velvet, crayonette, gummetal and dull. Button shoes lead—although laced models are good.

Vamps are longer, toes narrower and heels lower for the majority of women's shoes.

WE WARRANT prices 25c to 75c lower on Wright-Metzler shoes—and a higher grade of material and workmanship for the prices we ask than you regularly get at any other store in town. This comes about through our handling non-advertised lines—the amount necessary to spend in a season's campaign going into the shoes themselves. This broad statement is provable by comparing our shoes with others and by their more satisfactory wear.

The Exhibit is a presentation of silks which have been ordered leaders for autumn and winter.

We overheard a woman remark that the display brought to her mind the old fairy tale of the prince who set off to find a carpet soft and fine enough to be drawn through the eye of a needle. To her it seemed that the manufacturers had some such object in view when they determined the texture of the new silks—flimsy, mysterious weaves of silk and metal and velvet, colorful harmonies that stir a very capture—above and beyond any that have preceded.

Some are exact duplicates of the weaves used by notable French designers; others are direct imports in greater variety than we've ever brought in. Of the latter, there is not too much of any one design or color, making for greater exclusiveness to the purchaser.

Prominent in the display are: EXQUISITE BROCHÉ SILKS. NOVELTY IN NOVELTY TONES. BRIDAL SILKS—MANY SHADES. GOLD AND SILVER WEAVING. PLAIN SILKS AND BLACK MAN.

Jet Trimmings

SAYS PARIS

AND HERE THEY ARE

Wee heads and large heads—buntings, ornaments, tassels, fringes and beaded nets—all of the sparkling, gleaming jet; and they are splendid indeed.

Buttons will be used extensively as trimmings, and they are in a legion of shapes, designs and colors—opalescent, or gleaming jet, reminiscent with many hues, or out and out brilliant in tone.

Girdles are a part of the trimming note. Girdle ribbons fairly riot in color. Rich, vibrant, wonderful colors they are and they are proving the dominant note in the costumes they are used with.

Ribbons for girdles are: 25c to $1.00 a yard for black satin, 5, 6 and 7 inches wide.

25c to $1.00 for black moire.

1.25 yard for 4 1/2 inch colored velvets.
